INSTITUTE OF Communicology®

1 What is Communicology?

Literally translated, Communicology means the study of "what is common" (in Change processes and Communication).

It is a meta-discipline (meta = "about")

-> it is a discipline that studies, compares and classifies knowledge from other disciplines.

Communicology provides you with a common language, terminology and toolbox, -> the key factors in communication and change work which are 100% interdisciplinary applicable.

2 How is the education conducted?

The combination of interactive teaching, working in groups, involving all your senses, personal experiences, physical movements and practical application creates an intense and systemic learning experience.

All learnings will be integrated and will be applicable immediately in your field of work and life.

3 What is the difference to other educations?

Avoid being overwhelmed by decisions on what certification, method, technique or approach to do next and learn the basics and the keys of successful change work.

In addition, you will strengthen the competence in your field and get a better and more profound understanding about the elements which lead to quality performance. You can put everything right into use.

"We are forever grateful for what Jorunn and Truls, and the discipline of Communicology has taught us. Communicology has had a strong influence in our growth as coaches and our development as human beings."
